More over you can explore all this spectacular islands with a great affection. The prime location of this Hawaii is in the middle of the Pacific. You can enjoy and involve in number of activities only after arriving on the Big Island. However you should consider about the depths of the ocean to some of the most secluded and spectacular spots in Hawaii, if you are staying on the coast of this Hawaii or further island. You can swim with exotic fish, circle gorgeous reefs, and view ancient lava flows on a diving or snorkeling excursion or stay inside the boat for a cruise in search of dolphins, whales, and manta rays.

If you want to enjoy your own thrills, you can march towards the Kona coast where you can grab a kayak and explore coral gardens, sea caves, lava tubes, and the different nooks and crannies that line the coast of the island. You can also enjoy heart-pumping adventure, hop aboard a deep sea fishing charter for a try at some of the big fish off of the Kona coast also. You can find numerous fishing boats which will take you in search of marlin, yellowfin tuna, wahoo, Dorado. If you want to sit back and relax, there are many beautiful beaches for you on this Big Island like Kua Bay at Kona Coast State Park, Kaunaoa Bay or Mauna Kea Beach. Here at Kona Coast State Park, you will find beautiful white sand surrounded by a lush green landscape and also this place is perfect for catching some sun or great for swimming. Kaunaoa Bay or Mauna Kea Beach is one of the more popular beaches on the island due to the long crescent of white sand and the pleasant water conditions that allow for swimming and snorkeling. There are a few places to head to head where you can see two of the most active volcanoes in the world like Kilauea and Mauna Loa at Hawaii Volcanoes National Park. You can see lava from these hiking trails around the park. If you will move towards the Hawaii Tropical Botanical Garden, you may think yourself that you are in the rainforest and past flowing waterfalls and streams. This tropical oasis offers an exceptional and protected look at a myriad of plants from all over the world, including palms, bromeliads, gingers, and heliconias, so generations to come can revel in their beauty. Mauna Loa Macadamia is another popular tourist destination situated along the slope of the Mauna Loa volcano in Hilo. Here, you can drive through the plantation, walk through the nut and chocolate processing plant to see how the end product is created, and receive chocolate demonstrations and free samples near the gift shop. However Hawaii is a great place for anyone who wants to combine an abundance of water activities with a one-of-a-kind landscape that will simply take your breath away. There are many big Island vacation rentals that are located throughout this island for your right accommodations.
